

EARLY-STAGE PRODUCT ROLE

Associate Product Owner

Launch, Content & Growth

A practical startup role focused on helping us launch, test, improve and promote two new digital products.

COMPANY	LOCATION	WORK PATTERN
Foregate Technologies Limited	Remote	Fully remote No office attendance required

Why This Role Exists

Foregate Technologies is a new company with two products that are still being improved and introduced to customers. We need one organised, hands-on person who can connect user feedback, product testing, content and promotion so the team keeps moving toward launch and early sales.

The Products

MySchoolPilot — A school management platform for administration, academics, fees, attendance, reports and parent engagement.

MamaLinguaKids — An African language-learning platform for children, beginning with languages such as Yoruba, Igbo and Hausa.

Immediate Priorities

- Test the products thoroughly, report defects clearly and confirm that fixes work.
- Collect feedback from pilot schools, parents, tutors and children, then help prioritise the most important improvements.
- Help onboard early users, demonstrate the products and create simple guides or tutorials.
- Create useful video, audio, image and written content for MamaLinguaKids with tutors and language contributors.
- Promote both products consistently and help generate enquiries, trials and early customers.
- Provide a short weekly report covering completed work, product issues, user feedback, content, leads and next priorities.

Core Responsibilities

- Maintain a simple, prioritised product backlog and turn agreed needs into clear tasks or user stories.
- Test important journeys such as registration, school setup, admissions, payments, attendance, reports, lessons and account management.
- Record issues with steps to reproduce, screenshots, expected results, actual results and severity.
- Support product demonstrations, pilot programmes, onboarding and basic customer enquiries.
- Plan and produce child-friendly MamaLinguaKids lessons and promotional content; check accuracy, pronunciation, quality and cultural suitability.
- Create and schedule social posts, respond professionally to enquiries and track engagement, trials and leads.
- Keep product notes, content files, feedback, decisions and progress organised.
- Work closely with management, developers, tutors and other contributors; communicate delays or blockers early.

What We Need

- Strong organisation, attention to detail and written communication.
- Confidence using websites, mobile apps, shared documents, spreadsheets and social platforms.
- A user-focused mindset and willingness to test, learn and improve quickly.
- Ability to create or coordinate basic video, audio, image and written content.
- Professional judgement when working with schools, families, children and confidential information.
- Reliable internet access and comfort collaborating remotely by email, chat and video calls.
- Product, testing, education, customer-support or digital-marketing experience is helpful but not essential.
- Knowledge of Yoruba, Igbo, Hausa or another African language is an advantage.

Success in the First Six Months

Reliable products	Important user journeys are tested and high-priority defects are tracked to resolution.
Useful feedback	Pilot-user feedback is organised and converted into sensible product priorities.
Launch content	MamaLinguaKids has a consistent supply of accurate, child-friendly learning and promotional content.
Early traction	The company is running demos, onboarding users and building a measurable pipeline of enquiries and trials.

Employment Conditions

This is a fully remote role. There is no requirement to attend an office. Working hours are Monday to Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. (Africa/Lagos), with one 30-minute break, unless otherwise agreed. Six working days of paid annual leave apply after 12 months of continuous service. Certified sick leave and Federal Government public holidays will be observed in line with company policy and applicable regulations.

The company does not provide transport allowance, staff transportation or accommodation.
